Mission

Help anyone with a balcony, a patio or a sunny window grow real food and healthy plants — without already knowing how.

HOMEgrown turns five answers about your space, light and goals into a season plan, then gives you one week at a time: three to five tasks, each with a reason.

Vision

A world where growing something is as ordinary as cooking it — where every rented flat has a few pots that actually produce.

We measure success in harvests, not in time spent in the app. The best week is the one where you do the task and get on with your day.

What we do

A deterministic plan built from your ZIP code, light and space. No guessing which week to sow: the calendar comes from your frost dates.

Who it is for

First-time growers in small spaces. People who bought a basil plant, watched it die, and want to try again with a system.

How it feels

Calm and specific. One card a week, one reason per task, an Undo instead of a warning. Never a guilt trip for a missed watering.

1.3 BRAND PROMISE

Green thumb not required.

Tell us what you have and how much light it gets. We'll tell you what it needs this week.

Specific

not vague

We name the plant, the day and the amount.
“Water the basil today” — never “give your plants some love”.

Honest

not salesy

If a feature is off, the screen says so. If something is a guess, we call it a guess.

Calm

not alarming

A missed task is just a task for this week. No red, no streak shame, no countdown timers.

Warm

not cute

A friend who grows things, not a mascot.
Short sentences, plain words, the occasional joke about fiddle-leaf figs.

"Cheaper than one dead fiddle leaf fig. Covers every plant, all year."

PAYWALL

"No card for the trial. Your plants and photos stay yours either way."

LANDING

"Tell us what you have and how much light it gets. We'll tell you what it needs this week."

CALENDAR

"One honest gap: this works off frost, not summer heat, so in a hot region the edge of a cool-season window will drift."

Say

Water the basil today — the top inch is dry by now.

Don't say

Uh-oh! Your plants are thirsty!! 🌱💧

One unit

Stem width = 28. Every radius in the mark equals the stem width, so each piece is a leaf: a square end and a round end.

Point symmetry

Turn the mark 180° and it is the same shape. The two stems face away from each other like a pair of opening leaves.

The shoot

The crossbar is the third leaf, rising between the stems. It sits on the exact vertical centre of the mark and touches both stems.

CLEAR SPACE AND MINIMUM SIZE

- Strategy

- Logo
- Typography
- Colour
- Photography
- Elements
- Applications

Keep clear space of at least 2x on every side, where x is the width of one stem in the mark. Nothing — text, edges, other logos — enters that zone.

Lockup: min 160 px wide on screen, 30 mm in print

Brandmark alone: min 16 px, 6 mm in print

At 16–24 px use the solid mark only, no wordmark

Someone is always doing something.

Real people in the middle of a task: watering, potting, checking a leaf. Natural light, eye-level or slightly above, nobody posing for the camera.

Close enough to feel the soil.

Hands are our signature crop: dirt under nails, gloves with history, a seedling held like it matters. Shoot tight, keep the background soft.

The payoff, in the palm of a hand.

Harvest shots carry our result moments: the first tomato, a bowl of greens. Saturated, close, always held by a person — never a supermarket still life.
